To whom it may concern,

Canonical Ltd. is a global organisation headquartered in the Isle of Man committed to the development, distribution and promotion of open source software products, and to providing tools and support to the open source community.

One of Canonical's projects is the Ubuntu Operating system. Ubuntu is developed as free and open source software and can be used, modified, and redistributed without permission and completely free of charge. As part of it's promoting Ubuntu, Canonical Ltd. sends CDs, completely free of charge through the mail to users who request them. The software on the CDs can also be downloaded at no cost through our website.

The Ubuntu CDs in all shipments are distributed completely free of charge. For shipping purposes, we declare a 0.26 EUR value for each CD. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact me personally.

Sincerely,
Benjamin Mako Hill
